FUND COMMENTARY

The AI investment cycle remained a key structural driver of equity markets in June, as semiconductor exports surged. The main source for semiconductor market data, the WSTS, raised its prediction during the month to 90% growth in global semiconductor sales in 2026. This growth has been the key determinant of the exceptionally strong upwards revision in the next 12 months' earnings estimates for the global equity market.

The market, however, has started to exhibit some concern about the durability of this growth rate. Global equity markets peaked on 2 June, and cooled over the month, with a rotation away from technology and into defensive sectors towards the end of the month. This is favourable for the Fund's style of compounding, cash-generative, financially sustainable growth.

The best performers in the Fund in June were, as in May, companies which benefit from the growth of the semiconductor industry. Our two semiconductor equipment companies, ASML and KLA, were the strongest contributors to the Fund. Semiconductor equipment demand has proven historically to be much less cyclical than semiconductor demand. We expect these companies to be key beneficiaries of a bigger semiconductor industry, as the market they serve has enlarged, and they have strong and well-tested competitive positions. AJ Gallagher, an insurance broker, was a good contributor in the month – marking a reversal from its weakness earlier this year; and GE Aerospace, one of our engine turbine holdings (the other is Safran) performed well as the Strait of Hormuz re-opened and concerns lessened around international travel volumes through the Middle East.

Detractors in the month included Broadcom, where there is some concern that it is losing share to a competitor (we think as a function of capacity not ability, and therefore not a material concern); and Microsoft, which will have been impacted by reports that OpenAI is seeking to delay its IPO to next year. Microsoft has a stake in OpenAI, and OpenAI is a key contributor to Microsoft's AI cloud demand.

OUTCOME OF FAIR VALUE ASSESSMENTS (2025)

- The fund meets the needs of the target market.
- The intended distribution strategy remains appropriate.
- Historically, the fund did not deliver value for money. In response, as of the 2nd August 2023, Stonehage Fleming Investment Management Limited changed the personnel managing the fund and the approach to investment selection. The fund will follow the strategy pursued by the Stonehage Fleming Global best ideas fund (GBI), and own the same quality growth business as this fund. INVESTOR PROFILE

The fund is appropriate for all investor types, including those with only a basic knowledge of funds. It is compatible with investors who do not need a capital guarantee (investors must be prepared to accept fluctuations in the value of capital, including the ability to bear 100% capital loss) and are seeking capital growth. Due to the volatility of markets, investors should be willing to accept price fluctuations in exchange for the opportunity of potentially higher returns. This is a long term investment and investors should have an investment time horizon of at least 5 years. The recommended holding period does not provide any guarantee that the objective will be achieved. This product is eligible for all distribution channels (e.g. investment advice, portfolio management, non-advised sales and pure execution services).

The fund is unlikely to be appropriate for those who:

- Are looking for full capital protection or full repayment of the amount invested, and those who want a guaranteed return
- Have no risk tolerance
- Who are unwilling to accept price fluctuations (volatility) in the value of the fund
- Do not intend to invest for the long term

RISK PROFILE

The following risks are material:

- The price of units/shares and any income from them may fall as well as rise and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance. There is no assurance that the investment objective of the Fund will actually be achieved.
- Where investments are in the shares of companies (equities), the value of those equities may fluctuate, sometimes dramatically, in response to the activities and results of individual companies or because of general market and economic conditions or other events.
- Where derivative investments in the Fund may include a counterparty, there is a risk that the counterparty will not fulfil their obligation.
- The Fund may use derivatives to reduce costs, overall risk and/or generate additional capital or income. This is known as Efficient Portfolio Management (EPM). When used for EPM purposes, there should not be an increase in the overall risk level of the Fund.
- More political, economic or structural challenges face emerging markets or less developed countries than developed countries which may increase volatility and uncertainty.
- Where investments in the Fund are in currencies other than your own, changes in exchange rates may affect the value of your investments.
- Significant exposure to a particular industrial sector or geographical region puts the Fund at risk of a localised event making a significant impact on the value of the Fund.

All the risks currently identified as being applicable to the Fund are set out in the 'Risk' section of the Prospectus.
