PERFORMANCE DISCLOSURE

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments can fall. Investors may not get back the amount invested. Income from investments may vary and is not guaranteed. The return may increase or decrease due to currency fluctuations. Performance figures are net of fees and charges. The Fund may hold a relatively small number of stocks as compared to many other funds. This may make the Fund's performance more volatile than would be the case if it had a more diversified investment portfolio. For a full list of risks applicable to this fund, please refer to the Prospectus.

FUND COMMENTARY

Calendar year 2018 ended on a disappointing note with the MSCI AC World index delivering the worst yearly performance since the Credit Crisis. December alone delivered three quarters of the negative return in percentage terms. In technical terms the market has never been as oversold since the Credit Crisis as in December. Many investors wonder about the extent of this stock market reaction.

In our perception the main contributors to the weak investor sentiment are some fears that the Federal Reserve's tightening policy may be too aggressive, the continuing trade tariff uncertainties between the US and China, the US government shutdown, algorithmic trading activity and US taxpayers aggressively locking in losses at the end of the tax year. The combination of these clearly is fertile ground for further hedge fund activity.

Leading economic indicators in the US have peaked recently, but do not yet provide signals of potential economic contraction in the near future. Indicators of China's manufacturing industry are currently less constructive, but the overall GDP growth this year is still expected to be around 6% (the absolute level of nominal growth in China's GDP is estimated to have exceeded the US's by about two thirds in 2018). World GDP is expected to grow in excess of 3% this year. Company profits are expected to continue to grow, though at a more moderate pace than in 2018. S&P 500 valuation levels have dropped to below average levels through the combination of higher earnings and lower share prices despite continuing moderate levels of inflation and interest rates.

Some of the tactical contributions to the current weak sentiment mentioned above can be addressed through negotiations and diplomacy. The Federal Reserve has little reason to be overly aggressive in further tightening this year. In the end, we believe the quality of the businesses in our portfolio, with their ability to keep growing their free cash flow, should allow for constructive fundamentals to again reassert themselves.
