PERFORMANCE DISCLOSURE

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments can fall. Investors may not get back the amount invested. Income from investments may vary and is not guaranteed. The return may increase or decrease due to currency fluctuations. Performance figures are net of fees and charges. The Fund may hold a relatively small number of stocks as compared to many other funds. This may make the Fund's performance more volatile than would be the case if it had a more diversified investment portfolio. For a full list of risks applicable to this fund, please refer to the Prospectus.

FUND COMMENTARY

It feels as if the first half of this year has passed more quickly than usual. Equity investors have had two main fundamental issues to digest over this period.

The year started off strongly due to the deep US tax cuts, but was shortly thereafter confronted by escalating fears for high inflation (and therefore sharply increasing interest rates), essentially because of strong US employment. Whilst inflation has been rising towards the Federal Reserve's target level, general expectations for the medium term have barely moved. The yield curve has continued its flattening process with shorter rates rising, but longer rates remain muted (and the curve has not yet flattened or inverted).

The US administration's threats of increasing trade tariffs was another new unsettling factor. Whilst the cost to the US of already announced tariffs are dwarfed by tax and other fiscal policy benefits, the market fears the potential for a full-blown trade war between the US and China. In this context, US exports to China make up 0.7% of its own GDP, whilst Chinese exports to the US make up almost 4% of its own GDP. This skewed relative ratio may put the US in a stronger position to hopefully negotiate a constructive outcome on trade with China. It may be that a stronger Dollar poses more of a threat in this context.

Barring these uncertainties, the world and especially the US economy remains on a constructive course. Company earnings results continue to accelerate, with the consensus expectations for both the S&P 500 and MSCI World earnings to grow in double digits over the coming year. We should also bear in mind that a bear market does not usually get triggered when earnings accelerate at this rate.

The second half of the year will surely bring its dose of surprises, but the current fundamental outlook continues to appear constructive.
