PERFORMANCE DISCLOSURE

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments can fall. Investors may not get back the amount invested. Income from investments may vary and is not guaranteed. The return may increase or decrease due to currency fluctuations. Performance figures are net of fees and charges. The Fund may hold a relatively small number of stocks as compared to many other funds. This may make the Fund's performance more volatile than would be the case if it had a more diversified investment portfolio. For a full list of risks applicable to this fund, please refer to the Prospectus.

FUND COMMENTARY

November was an eventful month in the capital markets. The US reporting season produced better than expected results, the US presidential election delivered a surprising result, the Chinese regulator blocked one of the largest ever listings and news of successful vaccines boosted investor confidence on the economic outlook for next year.

Company financial results surprise to the upside, both on the top and especially the bottom lines with margin recovery evident as the worst effects of various economic lock-down measures seem to be behind us. Consensus projections continue accelerating.

The US election outcome was closer than many expectations. Whilst the state of the Senate control is still uncertain, it seems that the new administration may turn out to be less radical than what many had feared. Perceptions in this context have moved from fears of a material threat to business to a potentially more moderate environment, with some hopes of an improvement in international business relationships.

There are different interpretations of the Chinese regulator's recent intervention in their financial system and separately the anti-competitive practices in e-commerce. To us, it appears as an improvement in overall governance of their financial system and the protection of consumers.

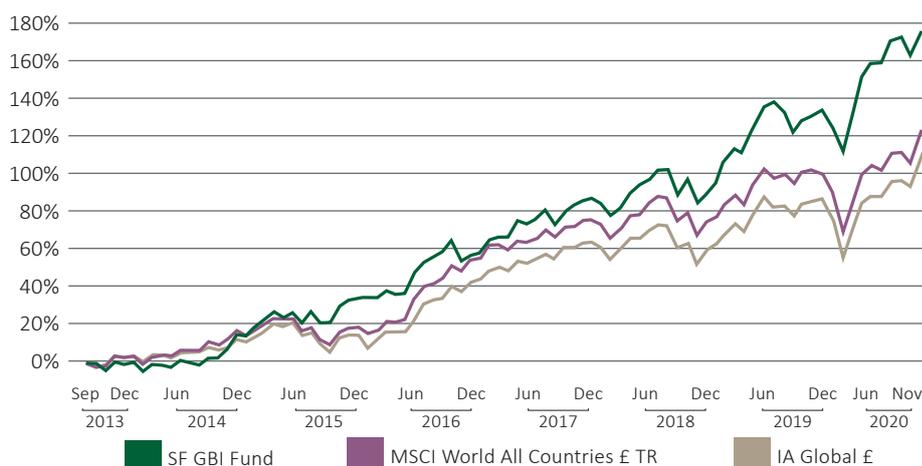

The good news around vaccines with high efficacy rates could not have come at a better time, given the second lock-down many economies are enduring. Whilst investors realise the vaccines can only become economically effective into the New Year, the difference between hope for a solution and the actual reality of a solution cannot be overstated. This is the best news the world has received in a long time.

Whilst China's economy experiences a V-shape recovery and is already growing at 5%, we believe the US is also leaving their Virus Crisis recession behind and is already moving into a new economic upswing. This has historically been a good time to be invested in equities.
